A MUSICAL RECITAL. Entertainment of the University College of Music.

The chapel of the University of Southern California in West Los Angeles was well filled yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the occasion being a musical recital by the students of the Conservatory of Music, which is one of the departments of the institution. The entertainment was under the direction of Miss Louise Wright and Miss Lelia Breed, professors of vocal and instrunental music, and the following programm was rendered: Instrumental Duet-Misses Young an sigler.

Piano Solo—Miss Flora Lindley.
Vocal Solo, "Bunch of Violets"—Miss Alice

The renditions gave evidence of careful study and preparation, and the recital was a very pleasant one for all who were present.

Northcut held that position—starts East today, having successfully perfected the business of consolidation upon which he came to the coast. THE NEW DEAL.
"When does the new deal go into effect,
Mr. Smith?" asked the Times man. 'June 1st," was the reply.

Mr. Smith?" asked the Times man.

"June 1st," was the reply.

"And where will the general offices of the new company be located?"

"In San Bernardino."

"When will you effect a junction between the Los Angeles and San Gabriel Vailey and the San Bernardino and Los Angeles roads, and thus have your own line from San Bernardino to this sity?

"It will probably be a full week yet before we make the connection," said Mr. Smith. "Some angle bars have failed to arrive. I telegraphed for them today."

Mr. Smith sprivate car goes out this morning over the Southern Facific to Colton, and thence up to San Bernardino, whence it will be taken out to the end of the San Bernardino and Los Angeles Railroad track. Mr. Smith and his party-including his friend, George Dillwyn Cook, and Albert Nickerson, the biggest stockholder in the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railroad Company, with his family—will go out over the Los Angeles and San Gabriel Valley to the eastern end of its crack, across the short gap, resume their cars and roll back eastward.

W. F. White, the sunshiny general ticket and passenger agent of the Santa Fé system, was obliged to hurry back to Topeka, yesterday morning, without waiting for the rest of the party. So bright and jolly a traveling companion will be seriously missed by the others on their homeward way.

The Collection of Specimens at the University.

The University of Southern California, which is making a substantial and satisfactory growth educationally, is soon to have added to its valuable stores an acquisition in the shape of a large collection of minerals from all parts of the world. The collection includes all kinds of corals, petrified woods, ores, fossils, granites, marbles, various kinds of ornamental stones, the numbers mounting up into the thousands, and presenting a most interesting study for the seeker of knowledge or pleasure.

Is He Crazy? About half-past 9 last evening Officer Woodward heard a police whistle blown, and running to the corner of Ducomn and running to the corner of Ducommun and Alameda streets he saw a man and asked him if he had blown the blast. The man replied, yes, and that there was a man in a house on Ducommun street near by who was smashing the house down.

The officer went in and found a man whom the woman keeping the house asked him to take away, as he was crazy and had been smashing windows. He took the man to the station, where the culprit told a rambling story about being sick, and being pushed through the window. As he did not appear just right, he was locked up for the night under the name of E. Vallance, charged with being disorderly, in order to find out today whether he is really same or not.

"Old Two-per-cent Chaffey" is a well-known character about town. He came known character about town. He came here in early days, and by some means he secured a title to some land in the city which has made him rich. Whisky is the only thing he takes any pleasure in spending money for, and it has always been a mystery to those who know him to understand how he keeps body and soul together. Last night he was arrested by Offleer Woodward, and when the old fellow reached the station he was in such a condition that the offleers had to lock him up, notwithstanding the fact that he had a large sum of money on his person.

About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the Second-street cable broke near the Spring-street terminus, and, up to a late hour last night, it had not been repaired. People who live over the hills had to either ride over on

The Fraternity in Los Angeles Turns Out in Handsome Shape - The Street Parade, Literary Exercises and Ball.

The sixty-eighth anniversary of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows was celebrated yesterday according to the programme heretofore published. At 1:30 o'clock p.m. the head of the parade formed at the corner of Fort and Second street, and over the route laid out on Fort, Spring and Main streets in the following order: The mounted police, consisting of Capt. Tyler and Officers Fowler, Arguello, Dalton, Leverich and Reel; mounted officers of the order, J. R. Matthews, Cyrus Willard, L. S. After the parade the participants and a large number of auditors assembled in Armory Hall to listen to the literary exercises of the day. Upon the stage was a floral design containing the number "08", the link and the letters "I. O. O. F."

Past Grand H. Smith, president of the day, called the assemblage to order. Following, came music by the Seventh Infantry Band. Prayer read by Chaplain R. W. Reddy, Reading of proclamation calling upon the lodges to celebrate the day by the Grand Master. Reading of the flistory of the order. Singing of the thanksgiving hymn by the whole audience. Reading of prayer. The president then introduced the orator of the day, Rev. Will A. Kinghten, who delivered an address. He said:

"Mr. President, Brothers and Sisters of the Order, and Fellow-citizens.—Dr. Hall, of New York, says that afternoon congregations are divided into two classess, those who are asleep and those who are going to sleep; but I feel that my audience has had sufficient exercise to keep them awake.

Sixty-eight years ago tonight the Order of Odd Fellows was established in Baltimore by Thomas Wildey, John Welch and James I. Ridgely. Odd Fellowship is older than sixty-eight years. Some persons think that secret societies should be old in order to do any good, but very few of them are of any great age. It is said that this society was formed in England, and that when Wildey came over to the United States he established an order independent of that, and hence the first word in the present title. Wildey was a philanthropits, seeking to do good, and his life and burial in Baltimore was a great honor to that city. We call ourselves an order because we systemize matters and bring order out of chaos in our work. Some persons oppose secret societies, probably they have no secrets. ourselves an order because we systemize matters and bring order out of chaos:in our work. Some persons oppose secret societies, probably they have no secrets, at least none that we can find out. In early ages men had few secret organizations, and none for the benefit of the race. They had such societies for purposes of war and rapine if a tall. They had buildings devoted to the same uses. The Emperors had these secret societies and they were deadly to those who did not do the will of these tyrants. There were no societies for providing for the sick and the afflicted, for the widow and the orphan. And this was because of the ignorance of the race.

When Christianity came, it was the cause of the organization of these orders being formed. All things are done in this age by organizations. Men follow out this idea in business, in real estate, in railroads, and elsewhere.

Secret organizations are a necessity now; without them the weekel of society would organizations. Men follow out this uca in business, in real estate, in railroads, and elsewhere.

Secret organizations are a necessity now: without them the wheels of society would refuse to turn and they cannot be abolished. California is a peculiar State. Odd Fellowship was first established here about thirty-four years ago, only the lifetime of one man, and the following is its work for the past year: It spent last year in charity and relief, $210,708: in burying the dead, $24,473: in the relief of brothers, $160,000; to widowed families, $15,000. The number of brothers relieved was $136, their revenue was $232,-841 and our membership 25,000.

The average amount expended for relief and charity purposes was $8.75 per capita, and that is as much as some churches do. There are 25,000 men in our order who are helping in this work, devoting their time and means to relieving the distress of human life. It argues they are a little above the ordinary grade; that they are virtuous men; that they are not dissipated men; that they do not spend their time as owls. The amount of our income the past year was $232,841 in this State, which shows that we are not getting poor. The report of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of the United States shows that we have grand and subordinate lodges, grand and subordinate encampments. to the number of 8877, with a $5,274.307, or which $2,111,026.86 was spent for relief purposes.

We will compare the members of our order with those anywhere in size, in good looks, in healthfulness, in virtue, in truth. I have been where there was danger, and where I found a man who—but I can not tell it all. I was satisfied that I was safe. The total revenue of the order in the United States, for one year, is as I have stated, and its work in relieving the sick and suffering is the grandest monument that could be crected to the memory of its noble founder and guiding mind, Thomas Wildey.

Our principles. Some people come to me and suffering is the grandest monument that could be creeted to the memory of its noble founder and guiding mind, Thomas Wildey.

Our principles. Some people come to me and ask me if we have any principles. We have them. We have a principles. We have them. We have a principles. We have them. Some people judge men by their clothes, by their looks (why, I have been taken for a sporting man instead of a preacher), by their residence, but we believe that in every man is something of good. We believe that all men were created free and equal, and in the Fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man.

We believe in hope. We believe in fraternity and charity. The world is a neighborhood, and man is a neighbor to man.

We believe in truth as one of our foundation stones. We believe in personal character, in sobriety, honesty and stability.

Then again, we believe that woman has some rights, and have admitted her into our societies. As an order, we have a grand future. No man can tell what that future may be. We hail the advent of the A. O. U. W., and of all younger orders, but the time has not come when the decay of this order is at hand. When the new courhouse shall have become moss-covered; when men shall ride in electric cable cars from Pasadena to Los Angeles, from Los Angeles to Santa Monica and to San Diego, in twenty-five minutes, and deposit their photographs along the way; and Los Angeles shall have aged; then our great-great-grandchildren's great-great-grandchildren's great-great-grandchildren's great-great-grandchildren's great-great-grandchildren will look back and say this is an old order.

We believe in the immortality of our order, and look forward and upward for the blessing of God upon our work that is before, and in the belief that every good purpose shall prosper, to the building up of humanity on the earth.

The oration was greeted with pleasure and applause throughout by the audience. The band rendered a selection, and the meeting was adjourned.

In the evening a grand ball was given at the same place, w

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE.

The Local Club Listens to Mme

A rare treat was afforded the Woman's Suffrage Club, at their semi-monthly meeting of April 29th. Besides two original essays, they were honored by the presence of Mme. Demorest, a woman of world-wide fame. She was accompanied by a very lovely daughter. Her informal talk as she lovely daughter. Her informal talk as she sat—mostly in answer to eager inquiries—was listened to with deep attention. Many good hints Mus Demorest gave the club in regard to forwa. Ing woman suffrage in Southern California. Among others, these: "Mass meetings held occasionally, addressed by good speakers, is one; attractive literature, bearing on the subject, is another. Probably petitions, industriously circulated and signed by the women, is the best means. Many good men say they will favor it when assured that the women themselves desire suffrage." Miss Demorest suggested "socials" as helpful.

The club's meetings, held in Hollenbeck parlor every other Tuesday, are open to all desiring to investigate the subject.

The Co-operative Colony Closes Out Its First Series.

The first series of 200 shares in the Cal-ifornia Cooperative Colony is all sold. The last share was taken before 4 o'clock yes-terday afternoon, and within the next three hours more than a dozen other applicants for stock called at the colony hear in the Newell block, but were too late. The in the Newell block, but were too late. The second series of shares, however, will be opened very soon, though, of course, at advanced prices. The success of this Cooperative Colony enterprise, since the selection of a location, has been notable.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors yesterday several bids were received for surveying the land and laying out the colony town. Several officers of the organization, accompanied by a surveyor, will visit the tract today and select the townsite. A plan for the first building has also been drawn, and work on the structure will begin very soon and pushed to completion at the earliest possible day.

ANOTHER FARCE.

The People Pay for More of Bell's Piping.

Another chapter in the costly fun which Horace Bell is having and which the people are paying for was closed yesterday. It will be remembered that Bell, having vainly tried to get Col. G. Wiley Wells held for alleged libel, took the case down to Santa Monica before Justice Twitchell. A great number of witnesses were subremed by number of witnesses were subprenaed by Bell and went down to the examination. As Bell and went down to the examination. As Justice Taney was among them, his own important court was left vacant all day. The case came up duly before Justice Twitchell at Santa Monica yesterday. On motion of G. Gordon Adam, counsel for defendant, to dismiss the complaint because an examination had been held before Justice Taney and discharged the defendant because there was not sufficient evidence to justify his being held to answer, Justice Twitchell dismissed the complaints before him and discharged defendant.

Articles of incorporation were filed yes-terday by the California Investment Com-pany. The objects are the accumulation and loan of funds, erection of buildings and purchase and sale of real estate for the benefit of members of the company. The principal place of business will be in this city. The directors are A. McNally, of Chicago, Ill; H. Silver of San Bernardino; E. F. Kingman, of Riverside, and E. L. Fellows and E. E. Nye, of Los Angeles. Capital stock, $300,000; amount subscribed, $200,000.

He Withdrew.

Readers of THE TIMES will remember the murder of Alessandro Talice, proprietor of the old Roma Hotel, by his cook, Constanthe old Roma Hotel, by his cook, Constantino Vedani, January 8, 1887. Vedani was held to answer by Justice Taney, and is now in the County Jail awaiting trial. A lot of his fellow-Italians secured H. T. Gage to defend him, and Mr. Gage appeared for him at the preliminary examination. The sons of sunny Italy, however, failed to pay up, and Mr. Gage yesterday withdrew from the case.

Busy Bees.

Bees are swarming. About 9 o'clock yeserday morning, a host of them, on Spring street, in front of Adam's tailor shop, made things lively for passers-by, to the great amusement of the spectators on the side-walks, and if the afternoon old Sam Carson was observed scraping them off the body of a tree on Temple street by the hatful. He is ready to contract to remove bees from anybody's bonnet or house.

The Ballona Harbor and Improvement Company's staunch little tug arrived from San Francisco, yesterday morning, and steamed safely into the embryo harbor. Work there is being pushed rapidly, and the promises of the projectors seem in a fair way to be realized.

Went Over.

When the case of The People vs. J. C. Gromerly, charged with an assault with a deadly weapon, was called in Judge O'Melveny's court yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, it was learned that one of the material witnesses for The People was not present, and the case had to go over until he can be found.

Delegates from the various lodges of Se lect Knights, A. O. U. W., of California and Nevada, to the number of 100 or more, will convene in annual session next Tuesday, in this city. A grand banquet will be given on Monday evening, preceding the convention. ON SEWERS.

Ed Hayes, the bell-boy who entered Clara Morris's room at the Nadeau House about a month ago, while the actress was playing a month ago, while the actress was playing an engagement in this city, was to have been tried in Judge O'Melveny's court yesterday, but he did not show up, for the reason that he was among the prisoners who escaped from the County Jail about a fortnight ago, and did not care to come into court when the case was called. A bench warrant was issued for his arrest, and the case was continued.

Petit Larceny.

184 NORTH MAIN STREET, LOS ANGELES.

Beginning this morning the great Atchism, Topeka and Santa Fé system will drop the enormous rates fixed under the Interstate Commerce Law and return to the rates in vogue last year before the great rate war. The rate war cut down these figures about one-half, on the general average. The tariff going into effect today, therefore, will be only about twice as much as the phenomenally low one we enjoyed for several months prior to the beginning of the interstate regime, the first of this month, instead of four to six times as much, like the interstate rates: It will be remembered that the Interstate Commissioners have given the transcontinental roads a suspension of the famous "fourth clause" of the bill—that relating to long and short hauls—for seventy-five days. The Santa Fé has taken advantage of this suspension to cut its rates down to the ante-bellum figure. The reduction is probably good for the whole seventy-five days, and there is little likelihood that there will be any further change within that time. What will be done-thereafter depends upon the decision reached by the Commissioners. The Southern Paclife has, as yet, made no motion to reduce its ratesbelling, as usual, behind its more progressive rival.

THE BEAUTIFUL.

ESSAY NO. 2.

The newspapers are the enlightening influence of this age, the greatest age the world has ever experienced They state that the Star of Bethlehem is about to appear. They also state that CLAREMONT is the beautiful homesite of all the townsites.

The old subject for discussion in the lyceums of our boyhood was: "Which is the greater power, fire or water?" The artesian belt, of which Claremont is the great center, was then unknown -could the early settler of the great Mississippi River Valley have knownbut 'twas left for this age, "The Claremont Age," to open up the crystal fountains. Not by miles of poor iron pipe, but clear sparkling water, pouring forth its liquid wealth from the depths of the earth, emblematical of "Ponce de Leon's fountain of perpetual

The early Christian sang: "Could I but stand where Moses stood and view the landscape o'er," etc. They had never seen or heard of sweet Clare mont, or they would not have referred to Moses. The eye had not seen, the ear had not heard of the visions of RAYMOND loveliness that enchant the eye from Claremont Heights. From the thousands of orange trees come sweet odors. Delicate green is the foliage the fields of growing grain. Delicions spreads the shade of the noble oak. Great, majestic, imperial, are the mountains that seem so near. Glistening white are the peaks, emblematical of all that is pure.

Serenely 'mid all this picture of the beautiful and grand in nature lies the queen of all-Claremont the beautiful. Do you wonder that I have sold $100. 000 worth of lots in a few days?

Do you wonder that those who bought at first prices have been offered, and many have accepted, 50 and 100 per cent. advance?

Now, Claremont lots can be bought for a mere trifle. The 1st of May they will advance, making the price 25 per cent. above the starting price.

George H. Fullerton, the president of our company, wires me, April 21st: "Your depot will be built at once. I congratulate you on your splendid prospects. Claremont is queen."

PARK! HYDE

Look where you will in the vicinity of the city of Los Angeles, in search either of lots or acre properly, for charming homes, and the best judgments will be convinced at a glance as to the difficulty of finding a location for a town so beautiful, such pure and bracing air, and asmoth, rich lands as characterizes Hyde Park. This spiendid townsite is located on the line of the Callfornia Central, of the A., T. & B. F. system, which is to connect Los Angeles with the new harbor at La Ballona, and is distant 7% miles from the center of the city; a midway town between the city and the harbor. Trains are to be running through the tract by July next, when great business activity all along the line will be the order of the day. Liberal-sized lots, 9x189 feet, fronting on sixty-foot avenues, are offered and being taken rapidly at $500 each; $40 each, balance $10 per month, without interest. Such terms give the present purchasers a good opportunity to make money in the rising values that must follow the effects of the harbor and railroad developments. Particularly desirable are the 5 and 10 acre villa lots surrounding the town. Conveyances leave the office at 1:30 p.m., to show parties the beautiful property.

THE Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railroad magnates, who start back East today, having accomplished an important work here, feel that they been among friends. There is probably no other railroad in the United States between whose officials and the public at large exists a parallel confidence and esteem. The Santa Fé people have gained their enviable standing by what Vice-President Smith aptly calls "a policy of intelligent liberality."

In the local columns of this morn ing's Times will be found the full list of officers of the new California Central Railway Company-the consolidation of the Santa Fé system's eight branches in Southern California. The directory is one to inspire added confidence in the future of the Santa Fé's plans admitting and making room for alien for railroad development in this section. It'is pleasant, also, to note the recognition of faithful and intelligent service by the retention of such officials fare across the Atlantic but $8, over as Williamson Dunn, H: B. ment of Ballona Sl with a view to converting it into an artificial bay, has aroused interest in San Diego, which always pricks up her ears, like unto the conejo de jack, whenever the word "harbor" is mentioned. The Sun, which shines for all of San Diego, and part of Mexico, not to speak of China, Japan, Australia, and the islands of the sea, has discovered that "all of a sudden there appears to have been considerable excitement created about Ballona Slough. The claim nov is that the Santa Fé people are behind the scheme to convert the slough into a bay or harbor, and that they will put on a line of steamers between and San Francisco, over there which line the Santa Fé will do its San Francisco business, instead of over the Southern Pacific. The Southern Pacific people say, however, that the Santa Fé cannot make any such move without giving them three years' notice of their intention to sever their relations and break the contract by which the Santa Fé sends all its traffic over the Southern Pacific lines from Los Angeles to San Francisco. But the Santa Fé folks claim that they have no contract which will prevent them from putting on and operating a line of steamers between Ballona and

San Francisco.

The Sun continues: "As to the merits of the case of course we cannot judge. So far as facts go, however, it may be admitted that the develop-ment of Ballona might retard the growing importance of San Diego as port of entry, and of cours should not like that. But all these changes cannot be made without San Diego reaping some benefit from them. If the Santa Fé attempts to press the Southern Pacific too hard, it is to be expected that the Southern Pacific will retaliate, and a war might result. We all know how one railroad war panned out for this country, and the good results of another would certainly be no less. But if another war should be inaugurated, it would probably take on a different form than the last one. The war of a year ago was confined to rate-cutting, blood-letting; but another war would more likely be a war for the acquisition of territory. The Southern Pacific appreciates that it has lost ground in this section of the State, and if opportunity is presented will undoubtedly endeavor to make up for its losses. One of the most natural suggestions would be the construction of a direct line from here to Yuma, or to some point on the main line in that neighborhood. Such a line would be of incalculable benefit to this city, for it would put us on the direct route of between the East and all Calitravel fornia points. San Diego would be-come the gateway and distributing point for all this southern section, as San Francisco is for the northern section. The sooner a war is precipitated which will produce such results, the better it will be for this city." The Sun complacently closes with these satisfied expressions: "So 'let the wide world wag as it will;' let the Santa Fé improve Bållona Slough if it can; let a war be precipitated-Sar Diego will be happy and prosperous still." In other words, quoting the language of the choristers in The "You are right, and I am right, and all is right as right can be."

"So mote it be!" "Selah!" "Let it be

Limiting Apprentices.

It has always seemed to us that one of the most serious mistakes made by trades unions of this country is in imposing such close restrictions on ap-In nearly every calling which is hedged about by a protective union there is an express limit as to the number of boys who may to learn a trade in any shop or factory, and the limit is a jealous one. It would be better if the unions would encourage boys to learn these trades, making the regulations apply to the thoroughness with which the trades should be learned. By this means the standard of workmanship would be maintained. and even elevated, and pari passu, th unions would be strengthened in the character of the men who compos them. If the standard of admissibility were made high, depend upon it, enough would drop out in learning to obviate all danger of overcrowding the ranks. As matters now stand, more half-educated apprentices are recruited into the ranks of mechanics than ever before known in this or any other country. They come, not through the channel best calculated to give them thorough schooling and wide practice, but from the by-ways of industry. The reason of this is that the direct channels are, in a great measure, blocked by the

Referring to the recent strike of the silversmiths of New York, it may be said that the whole difficulty arose in an attempt to limit unduly the number of apprentices that should be received in the shops. An exchange urges, very justly, that so long as the gate is open and foreign workmen freely admitted, why shut the doors of the trades to our own children? It is the very logic of folly to "bar out" the American boy and drive him to hoodlumism while

Gambling in Real Estate

PASADENA, April 25.—[To the Editor I THE TIMES.] A suggestive editorial a recent number of THE TIMES raws a distinction between investment, speculation and gambling in real state. Gambling is said to be the putting of a bonus on property by a man who ment, speculation and gambling in real estate. Gambling is said to be the putting up of a bonus on property by a man who has not the means to make the final payments, and expects to meet his obligations only by selling the land he has bought. Doubtless that is an example of gambling, for the supposed purchaser is simply betting that the property will be salable at an advanced price within a given time. But is the definition broad enough? Does it not confine gambling in real estate to people of limited means? Is it not true that people who are able to pay the debts they incur are doing their part to bring real-estate business into an unhealthy state?

In a community where fruit business has are doing their part to bring real-estate business into an unhealthy state?

In a community where fruit business has proved a success there has lately risen a somewhat urgent call for a business center. At once three or four parties plat their possessions and advertise town lots. But the railroad, which will be an important factor in determining the townsite, has been only projected, not built; and there is nothing in the community to determine the business center. So I linagine that even if a man pays in full for one of these lots, he is simply betting on the location of the town. Along one of the new railroads hundreds of acres have been cut up into town lots. But the surrounding country has been too little developed to give indications which of these places will be successful and which will go to the wall. The speculator in these places is putting up a wager and waiting to see what chance will do with it.

To name a thing gambling is assumed by your editorial to be sufficient condemnation. Surely it ought to be. For, aside from moral considerations, gambling is a poor business for a man who wants a competency in old

Our correspondent evidently places too broad a construction on the gambling. Every business and occu-pation in life has in it the element of chance. A man who plants a field of grain takes his chances on getting a crop; a man who buys a horse assumes ices that it may die before the next day; one who purchases real estate must risk the rise or fall in price, and a thousand chances may intervene to influence these results. But all chance is not gambling. The line is to be drawn somewhere between a reasonable, conservative chance, and a desperate, gambling chance. There is such a thing as a legitimate, bona fide investment in mining stocks, provided a man knows what the stock is actually worth, buys it on its merits and pays for it. But suppose he goes to a broker and secures an option on the stock for a certain length of time, merely advancing a "margin" on it. That is not investment, but gambling; and the laws of the land have take up the matter and declared it so. In several States the system of handling stocks by puts and calls is as much tabooed as gambling at faro.

Now, if this gentleman, instead of investing in a put or a call on the stock board, advances all of his available neans as a margin on a real-estate option, what is the difference? In th one case the law says he gambles; in the other the law does not yet say so but, to be consistent, it must some day proscribe the real-estate gamble as well as the other.

The moral principle is the same whether the law proscribes it or not. The whole object of THE TIMES in the article alluded to was to advise people against taking desperate chances chances whereby the least unfavorable fluctuation in price, or an unexpected delay in selling, might prove the purchaser's absolute ruin. In getting rich as in many other pursuits in life, it is

AMUSEMENTS.

FREDERICK WARDE AS "THE GLAD-ATOR."—Following immediately upon his success the night previous in the character of "Virginius," Mr. Warde last night presented another Roman story, in which he person-ates the gladiator grown old, but not feeble; the hero of a hundred fights, scarred with wounds; nursing an implacable hatred gainst the patrician oppressor, and himself

The tragedy is widely different in its construction from the version made familiar by John McCullough, and is an adaptation from the French made by Leonard Outram, but modeled over in many important partic-ulars by Mr. Warde in the past five years, during which he has been playing the char-acter.

during which he has been playing the character.

There is a wonderful vigor and grasp in Mr. Warde's rendition. He is rough, bold, hardened by suffering and indifferent to the value of human life, consumed with a desire for the means of revenging his wife's horrible murder, and a willing leader of a band of conspirators. The change wrought in him by the discovery that the innocent girl he is about to slay by order of the blood-thirsty Empress is his own daughter, was electric in its effect upon the audience, and the subsequent scenes were infused with a pathos which seemed all the more remarkable as coming from a man whose nature was pictured as so rugged. The personation was artistic in the best sense. Mr.

As Faustina, Miss Adele Payne read her lines with considerable intelligence and showed an excellent insight of the dark character of the wicked Empress, especially in the scene where she tries to win Flavian to her love, but she does not possess the physical strength to carry out in action a character which really demands a trage-dlenne of considerably more than average ability. Mr. C. D. Herman and T. E. Garrick were impressive in their respective parts, and the support generally sustained to the fullest degree the good impression made at the first night's performance.

BUNTINGTON.

A Trip to the New Town – How It Looks–Magnificent Scenery. Having heard so many glowing accounts of the new town of Huntington and its surroundings, I took the 9:21 a.m. train of the Los Angeles and San Gabriel Valley Railroad at Downey-avenue bridge, and in twenty-seven minutes arrived in Pasadena. Again the train started, and a further ride of ten minutes, through orchards, vineyards and wild flowers, brought us to Butler's, where the new Huntington station will be lo-

Two minutes' walk and we reached the lower end of the new town, named in honor of the great railroad king, C. P. Huntington. Here a busy scene presented itself. A large force of surveyors, teams, laborers, road-graders, water-pipe layers, rolling-machines, etc., were as busy as a hive of bees, transforming this charming site into a well-developed town. I was surprised at the perfect, natural formation of the townsite.

Gently ascending toward the mountains, with no holes or guilies, no cactus, stones or brush, but every lot carefully cultivated, ready for its shade trees, green lawns and pretty villas. Next we turn to the west half a mile, and there proudly stands on the highest altitude "Kinneloa," the beautiful home of Abbott Kinney. Here we visit three cafions, and see their three streams of water coursing over rocks and down to a half-million gallon reservoir; then to one holding 1,000,000 gallons. A third reservoir will be built immediately, expressly to supply Huntington, which will hold 1,000,000 gallons, and a fourth one to hold 1,000,000 gallons, and a fourth one to hold 1,000,000 gallons, and a fourth one to hold 1,000,000 gallons, and surth one to hold 1,000,000 waterfour separate sources—Huntington will be well supplied, especially as none can be wafsted in diluting intoxicating drinks, as the deeds all have a clause prohibiting its sale, excepting for medicinal purposes. THE CROCKER WEDDING.

Notable Society Event at Sar Francisco. Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 26.—[By the Associated Press.] The wedding of Miss Hattle Crocker, of this city, daughter of Charles Crocker, of the Southern Pacific Railway Company, and Charles Alexander, of New York city, took place at Grace Cathedral at noon today, Rev. E. R. Spaulding officiating. The church was crowded with fashionable spectators. The ceremony was short and impressive.

The decorations at the church were pronounced by all who saw them to be the most elegant, beautiful and original ever seen in California. The work of placing evergreen festooning had been in progress since last Sunday night, and has consumed 2000 yards of evergreen, the weight of which is two Sunday night, and has consumed 2000 yards of evergreen, the weight of which is two tons. Over the center aisle a handsome arch of white gilliflowers had been raised, under which the bridal party passed. The baptismal font presented a peculiar though pleasing aspect being almost buried under a mass of calla lilles and ferns. The remarkable portion of the decoration was reserved for the chancel and altar, which were a maze of the loveliest and most delicate flowers and evergreens. The chancel was arranged to represent a garden of flowers, with a picket fence surrounding it on all sides. Many thousands of small flowers and roses were used in the decoration, besides 5000 calla lilies and 200 yards of smilax festooning.

As the clock struck the noon hour, the organist played the wedding march from Lohengrin, and the bridal party entered the church. At the same moment the groom appeared in the chancel, accompanied by his brother, Henry Alexander. The bridal party was preceded up the aisle by eight ushers, who entered the chancel and took their positions on each side. Following them came the bride leaning upon the arm of her father, who delivered her to the custody of the groom, who met them at the floral gate of the chancel. The first portion of the ceremony was performed with the parties outside of the rail, Charles Crocker, the father, giving away the bride. The

The couple then stepped within the chancel and moved to the altar rail, where the vows were exchanged, the ring presented and the final words spoken that made the twain one. Charles Crocker was first to greet his daughter as Mrs. Alexander.

The wedding dress was a marvel of art, being composed of a long court train of white satin, around which extended deep flounces of costly pointed Devince lace, festooned with graceful vines and orange blossoms. The front of the robe was covered with rare old lace, combined with a very unique trimming of silver crystal in festoons on the skirt. Great bunches of orange blossoms connected the front with the train. The orsage was cut in Henry toons on the sain. The difference of the saint the train. The corsage was cut in Henry IV style, trimmed with lace to match the skirt. A beautiful vine of orange blossoms extended across the corsage from the right shoulder to the waist, terminating in long sprays. The sleeves of the bodice were slightly puffed at the shoulders, and extended below the elbow, and were finished with a fall of lace, holding a tiny bouquet of orange blossoms. The bride wore a magnificent pair of solitaire-diamond ear-rings, and a dazzling coronet, composed of the same precious stones.

The object of the commission is to do good and not harm. Its members are earnest and intelligent. If the railroads will only-endeavor to obey the law, and not attempt to raise obstacles' to its enforcement or to evade its meaning, it will work well, as they are given very large latitude, and can alter the application of the statute to suit the circumstances of each particular case. But if the roads endeavor to antagonize and hamper the commission, they will be dealt with in a very summary way, as both the President and the Commissioners are determined that the law shall be obeyed."

The demand has been increasing until a $100,000 laboratory is now necessary to supply the trade. A foreign demand has been created, and enlarged facilities will be necessary to meet it. This great

Our treatment consists in using remedies in the form of an ointment, which is sprayed through the head and throat, reaching every part that a spray can reach. The remedy remains in the head for some time, passes steadily into vapor, and reaches cells filled with mucous impossible to be reached by medicine in liquid or powdered form.

The treatment is painless, pleasant and effectual, curing fully 80 per cent of cases.

A WELL-ENOWN YOUNG WARD-WORKER IN TROUBLE.

Frank R. Pitney Arrested for Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses—Several Worthless Checks in the Background.

For some years past, or since he became aman, Frank R. Pitney has been an active politician in this city. He was raised in Los Angeles, and of course he is well known to the old settlers, and especially othose who have mingled more or less in politics. His parents are very respectable people, and are highly thought of by all who know them. For these reasons all will be sorry to hear of his troubles. Yesterday a warrant was sworn out by Constable 2R. Smith, charging Pitney with obtaining money under false pretenses. It seems that some time ago Pitney was employed in the postoffice as a clerk. In this position he acquired extravagant habits, and when he lost his place he could not give up his lively mode of life. His first missies was to pass a worthless cheece on Bisbee & Wenger, of the Opera saloon, for $\textit{st.}\textit{when the mended his ways. This was some time in last December. Shortly strength that he passed a bad check on Athman, the fraud was detected and Pitney was come time in last December. Shortly strength that he passed a bad check on Athman, the fraud was detected and prince the some time and the proper in the postoffice of Schleck & Friedrich and purchased a nation of Schleck & Friedrich and purchased a his object and the police station he gave his brook settled and is still in Ashman's possession. Last Friday Pitney entered the store of Schleck & Friedrich and purchased a store of Schleck & Friedrich and purchased and was some to be not hands of Constable EA.

Smith, Ed started out to look up his man, under arrest. Pitney was very much survey and the proper of the police station without another are of the proper of th mitted to ball and will have his examation at once.

On inquiry into his mode of living, it was learned that that sin-breeding place, the Club Theater, has received a great deal of his attention of late, and many of his evenings have been spent there. He has recently been working for a lumber firm, and bore a good reputation with them. About three weeks ago he entered Schieck's store, and wished to borrow $5. He was given the money, when he handed over a check on the Los Angeles National Bank, and walked away. This was on Saturday. On Monday morning he went into the store, and asked them not to present the check, as he had overdrawn his account, but that he would have some money in the bank in a few days, or, better still, that he would come into the store and pay it.

About three weeks ago he borrowed $10 from Col. A. H. Miller on the pretext that he wished to buy some tools, as he was building a house. Miller waited on him some days, and when he showed no disposition to repay the money, Miller swore to a complaint in Justice Taney's court, and Deputy Constable Hammel arrested Pitney. He was arraigned and pleaded not guilty, but nothing has come of the case so far.

A Special Officer Gets His Head Badly Cut.

A row that came near ending in blood-shed took place on the sidewalk near the Club Theater last night about 11 o'clock. A little tough who is known as "Baldy" or "Shorty" was raising a disturbance in front of the theater, when Special Officer Bar-bour came out and attempted to quiet him. Baldy became very abusive, and the officer Baldy became very abusive, and the officer was about to place him under arrest when a sport who goes by the name of George C. Johnson interfered and struck the officer on the head, cutting an ugly gash. Barbour then turned his attention to Johnson, and that individual showed fight by pulling his pistol. Johnson backed off until he reached the corner of Aradia and Main, when he started to run. Theofficer fired two shots after him, but none of them took effect, and Johnson would have made good his escape had it not been from them took effect, and Johnson would have made good his escape had it not been from the many Johnson had his pistol in his hand, and when Barbour came up, hit him over the head with it, cutting an ugly gash four inches long. work will be begun in a few days by the Southern Pacific Company on their ide-tracks and depot building, but a horrible rumor prevails that this company will insist that the station shall bear a different name from Glendale. The most notable evidence of the increased values of property in this section is that given by the late sale of the ten-acre place belonging to Mr. Sales, on the San Fernando road, near the laughter-house. The purchase price was $7200. The same place sold a year ago for $2700. Mr. Ayers, on Central avenue, has sold an acre within a few days for $600. Mr. Crippinger has also made a sale at a high figure (speaking comparatively, with former values in mind). A few ether sales have been made within a week, and that they are not numerous is owing to the fact that property-owners are not quite ready to let go, being satisfied that this section is the equal of the best in the county. A vexatious lawsuit, affecting the title of a small portion of the rancho, was lately settled by Judge Brusson, who declared, in substance, that the claim against it was perfectly baseless, hinging on a mere technicality. The decision was an important one, not only in its local application, but as a valuable precedent to discourage "shyster lawyers" from attempts at blackmail by means of bought-up, worthless claims.

It may not be generally known that our townsman, Franz Nebelung, is a composer of recognized merit in the Fatherland. His compositions rank high in that country, and a large number of them have been published. Previous to the celebration of the golden wedding of the Emperor of Germany there were 106 competitors for the honor of having their musical conceptions accepted in honor of the event. Five of these 106 compositions were accepted by the committee of experts, and among the five was "From Heart to Heart," composed by Mr. Nebelung. Another beautiful arrangement for the pianoforte is dedicated to his brother, Max Nebelung, and is entitled, "Durch Wald und Feld" (Through Forest and Field). Several of his later compositions have been accepted by a St. Louis publishing house, and are now in the hands of the printer.

LORDSBURG is located on the Atchison system of railroads—the Los Angeles and San Bernardine line-four miles northwest of Pomona, in a most beautiful portion of the valley, run over this road probably by the 20th of April. The Southern Pacific Railroad Company are now surveying a line from Ramona (Shorb's Strtion), past the Raymond Hotel and thence along the foothills above the Atchison road to San Bernardino, and probably thence to connect with the main line after going through the East San Bernardino Valley. ## DAN CLASH'S MULE.

"A band of redskins had come into the valley—mebbe a huntin' party, and nebbe a whole village," said Dan Clash, Montana hunter, describing an adven-ure with Indians to a New York Sun mebbe a whole village, "said Dan Clash, a Montana hunter, describing an adventure with Indians to a New York Sun reporter. "It was a warnin' that a white man about my size had better pack up and be off, and I tell you I didn't let no grass grow under my feet in gettin' ready. I had traveled in the timber durin' the day, to keep out of sight and to hide my trail, but now I left the shelter and took to the valley. I had four or five hours to daylight, and the way that mule and me got up and humped ourselves amazed the coyotes. I jist know that we were fully twenty miles away when daylight broke. The timber now was scattered along in groves, and afore daylight was too strong we took to shelter in a bit of timber containin' perhaps half an acre. This timber run to the bank of the river, and the bank at that spot was eight or ten feet high.

"I wasn't jist what you might call an Al Injun fighter. As I had put twenty miles between me and the Injuns down the valley, I sorter figgered that there wasn't another redskin nigher than them and that I could take things purty easy fur a spell. I unloaded the mule and turned her loose, and had jist eaten a bite of cold breakfast when the beast cum slyly through the bushes, ears laid back and eyes shinen', and gin me to understand that sunthin' was wrong agin. She didn't pint her head to'rds the valley, but straight fur the river, and I says to myself that perhaps she scented Injuns who were passin' up or down in canoes. I shouldered my rife and crept to'rds the bank, but I hadn't gone thirty yards when crack! erack! went two rifies, and two buliets zipped past my head in a way to make me dizzy. With a scream such as a wild beast might give, the mule made a rush in the direction of the shots and I follered on.

"This was what had happened and what did hannen." A counter of Injuns and I follered on.

made a rush in the direction of the shots and I follered on.

"This was what had happened and what did happen. A couple of Injuns were, perhaps, comin' down the valley when they saw me take to the grove. They saw me, but I didn't see them. They entered the grove on the upper side, leavin' their ponies tied to a tree, and were workin' around to get a shot at me but the mule twigged the game. Both fired at the same instant, and as a consequence both rifles were empty when the mule charged 'em. To escape her—and I'm tellin' you that she'd have taken right hold like a dog—they scrambled up a cottonwood growin' on the very aige of the bank. One of 'em dropped his rifle on the ground, while the other took his up. The mule stood nigh the foot of the tree pawin' and squealin', and as soon as I saw how the land lay I lifted my rifle fur a shot. The feller who had taken his gun up was workin' to lead her but I storoed him. My hallet lifted my rifle fur a shot. The feller who had taken his gun up was workin' to load her, but I stopped him. My bullet hit him in the shoulder, and it was catchand go-that he didn't tumble. I was loadin' fur another shot, and was takin' notice that the unwounded one was climin' higher, when the mule jumped back with a snort and the tree began to go over. It went slowly and the two reds yelled out in terror. When it struck the water there was an awful splash and a great commotion. The tree was too green to float, and the water was so deep that only a few branches showed above the surface. I reckon that both Indians were pinned down in some manner, fur neither one of 'em showed up after the splash. I kept a clus watch all about the place fur half an hour, but not a sign of them could fisee.

the place fur half an hour, but not a sign of them could I'see.

"I got one of their rifles, which was a splendid weapon, two ponies, worth $100 apiece, a lot of steel traps, and a large amount of powder and lead. It was more'n a week after that when I rode into Fort Benton, but I never saw another Injun nor had the least worry. When the fellers at the fort wanted to pat me on the back and call me big Injun, I pointed to the mule and said:

"Gents, there stands the old gal entitled to all the credit, and the thing I'm onhappy about is that she can't wear a onhappy about is that she can't wear a silk dress."

Life Among The Nez Perces.

The Indians of this coast, says the San Francisco Examiner, have nearly all discarded their peculiar costume, and wear old and new civilized dress in a decidedly Indian fashion. Among the Nez Perces is seldom seen an entire Indian costume. Sometimes, however, one is forcibly reminded of the parody: Lot the poor Indian, whose untutored mind. The Indians of this Lol the poor Indian, whose untutored mind.
Wears all his clothes in front and none behind

Wears all his clothes in front and none behind.
These Indians live in tents made of poles and covered with cloth or buffalo robes. The tents are left open at the top, and as the fire is built in the center, the smoke naturally goes out at the top.
At night each individual wraps his blanket around him and lies down on the bare ground, without any other cover-ing. The bucks are fond of gambling and understand the value of a bob tail-and understand the value of a bob tailed flush. They know how to play a lone hand, too, and if there is ever a scrapping match over the pot, there is a good Indian for breakfast already carved.

A bird's-eye view of their encampment reveals some curious phases. In the largest tent every night witnesses a high jinks which is made hideous by the discordant notes of several tam-tams, a peculiar flute with a hoarse whistle, accompanied by the women, who crone through their closed teeth. The dances and athletic exercises are the same as the powwow and sun dance of the Sioux. through their closed teeth. The dances and athletic exercises are the same as the powwow and sun dance of the Sioux. Not the least interesting and picturesque are the children and dogs, which abound in great numbers. The little infant is firmly tied to a board with a strap, which the mother puts accross her forehead when she is walking about. A little buckskin string tacked on one corner with a knot for each month tells how old the little fellow is, and the presence of beads and a strip of oil-cloth for sanitary purposes reveals the sex. It is amusing to watch the older children play house with rag dolls and dogs substituted for horses. In their childish way they mimic the life of their chiefs, and they are as quaint and ugly as they are mirthless. The dogs contribute their share to the general fun and patiently submit to being ridden and made to carry all sorts of bundles. The children have no compunction about raiding one another's play-houses, and many laughable things occur during the melee which follows. The children receive but little attention from their parents, and are covered with vernin.

arey are all bow-legged because they are not taken from the board until they can walk, and a great portion of that time their hands and feet are pinioned. They are remarkably quiet, seldom if ever crying. Less than half of them reach maturity.

A Bric-a-Brac Hunter Deceived.

A Bric-a-Brac Hunter Deceived.

It was unfortunate because she was going away after a delightful visit. All her friends were there to see her off, and she had no chance to explain it away. She was perfectly innocent, too, and it was not dissipated habits or strong tastes, but simply another example of the crase for bric-a-brac. But she is gone, and the young gentlemen who had dooked upon her as a high and brilliant specimen of femalety, came home from the good-by matinee with sore distillusionized hearts. It was a very pretty jar. The gentleman who had been her host had packed up two, and he sent them home. They were to be decorated. One had "Marquis of Lorne" on it and the other "Jeroboam." But they were unique, pretty jars. Men may have seen them, but the female bric-a-brac hunter saw artistic beauty in them men never looked for. Hers was "Jeroboam." All her trunks were packed and gone. She was wiping the tears from her eyes, for she did not want to go home. She had such a good time. "Oh," said the hostess, suddenly, "I declare, you've forgotten 'Jeroboam." She said, "my 'Jeroboam.' leave my 'Jeroboam' behind!

"Jeroboam!" she said, "my Jeroboam; leave my Jeroboam' behind! Never! Never!"

Never! Never!"

"How can we take it?"

"I will carry it."

So she took Jeroboam and kissed it tenderly, and she seized a piece of delicate yellow ribbon and tied it equally tenderly around Jeroboam's neck; then she took it gracefully in her arms and bore it off, and as she passed into the ferry she saw her Jeroboam was attracting a great deal of attention. Everybody looked at it and turned away. She was proud of Jeroboam. Then, after this had gone on for half an hour and the boat was nearly at Oakland, the and the boat was nearly at Oakland, the host said: "I guess you might as well let me fill it."

"Fill it! What do you mean?"
"Well, it might as well be full, since everybody can see what it is supposed to contain."

"What are you talking about?"
Then she took a long look at Jeroboam and found that all the time she had been carefully displaying a jar bearing the strange and appalling legend: "Jeroboam Scotch Whisky."—San Francisco Chronicle.

An Ancient Mexican Village.

An Ancient Mexican Village.

One of the most interesting places in Mexico is the old town of Zintzuntzin, only twenty miles from Morelia by the main highway. In its palmy days, four or five centuries ago, it was the seat of royalty, where was held the court of the ancient Kings of Michoacan; but now it is a poor Indian village, its palaces destroyed and its streets deserted. Its few poverty-stricken inhabitants cling with remarkable pertinacity to the customs of their ancestors, and are refreshingly ignorant of the doings of the world, for to them the whole universe is bounded by the near-by circle of hills. Some extensive ruins in the outskirts of the town—consisting chiefly of curiously-carved pillars and blocks of dressed stone—are the remains of the favorite town—consisting enieny or curiouslytearved pillars and blocks of dressed stone—are the remains of the favorite residence of Calzonzi, the last monarch of Michoacan. In all the fields hereabouts great blocks of porphyery may be found, having strange hieroglyphical figures wrought upon them. The Indians heap them up in the hedges, and many squalid hut has its adobe walls eked out by remarkable stones, whose queer carvings of frogs, feathered serpents or crocodiles were traced with patient art by hands that have been dust perhaps 1,000 years. In this portion of Michoacan many mounds exist which are supposed to be the debris of ancient palaces over which the sands of time have drifted to a depth of several feet.
Doubtless if excavations were made many of them would be found to con-Doubtiess if excavations were made many of them would be found to contain valuable antiquities, but the dull inhabitants take no manner of interest in the relies of a forgotten past. In modern Zintzuntzin a great deal of pottery is made, as quaint in shape and device as that of ancient Egypt. According to tradition and to picture histories painted centuries ago by Tarrase Indians on the woven fibres of the maguey, much "provisions" (probably fish from the adjacent lake) were carried by regular running posts from Zintzuntzin to lar running posts from Zintzuntzin to Montezuma's palace. in Tenochtitlan, a distance of 800 miles, with such dispatch that they were still smoking when placed on the Emperor's table!—Fanny Ward in Kansas City Journal.

"Going to Bed" Etiquette.

"Going to Bed" Etiquette.

It is always a debatable point of etiquette, whether hostess or guest makes the first movement to go to bed, and thus breaks up the everling gathering. The guest may be overcome with fatigue from a day's journey, the host may be fidgeting under the strain of entertaining, and longing for the guest to show some signs by which he can gracefully and hospitably suggest "that it is getting late," yet neither quite like to appear, as they think, impolite. In fact many visitors have suffered agonies in trying to be agreeable, while the host and hostess were doing their best to suppress their yawns and to "make conversation" until chance offered a solution of the difficulty. There is, however, but one rule to be followed in this relationship of host and hostess, and the hour of retirement. The host or hostess must always take the initiative and say an appropriate word as to the lateness of the hour and the desirability of gomust always take the initiative and say an appropriate word as to the lateness of the hour and the desirability of going to bed. A Boston lady who has entertained numerous, "house parties" relates it as her experience that the visitors she most dreads are "owls," who like to sit up till all is blue. Many is the time, she says, she has regretted the days of her childhood, when the nurse appeared at the drawing-room door promptly at 9 o'clock and carried her off to bed. How gladly would she now welcome the apparition of the nursery tyrant when obliged to find entertainment until midnight for people who were as anxious, perhaps, as herself, to go to their rooms.—Boston Beacon.
